Master of Law in Law and Economics

GENERAL OUTLINE

Objectives

Organised jointly by the Faculty of Law, Criminal Justice and Public Administration and the Faculty of Business and Economics (HEC Lausanne), this programme is intended to supplement initial training in law and/or economics with an interdisciplinary approach, allowing students from each of these two fields to acquire a thorough knowledge of the other discipline.

There is a manifest need for professionals who can combine a thorough knowledge of law with a good understanding of economics.

At a time when transversal skills are increasingly important, the Master's offers law students and economics students the possibility of acquiring knowledge relevant to different economic sectors of the world of business. The MLE focuses primarily on commercial and financial law, corporate management and taxation.

Career prospects

The Master of Law and Economics gives the holders of a Bachelor's degree in Law access to placements as a lawyer. The Master's also allows you to benefit from equivalences as part of training linked to the diplomas of tax expert and chartered accountant.

A range of careers is accessible:

- Industrial companies, insurance, trust companies
- Private banking, merchant banking, corporate investment, wealth management
- Legal advice (lawyers), auditing, accounting, tax consultancy, compliance
- Tax administrations, financial services of public authorities
- FINMA, SECO, SIX, COMCO, FOJ, COPA, MROS
- International organisations, in particular WTO, OECD
- Employers' and trades unions organisations

Moreover, university studies develop a great many transverse skills such as: oral and written communication, critical, analytical and summarising faculties, abilities in research, and so on. This panoply of skills, combined with specialist knowledge acquired in the course of studies, is excellent preparation for a wide range of employment opportunities.

EDUCATIONAL CONTENT

Description

The Master of Law in Law and Economics comprises three modules which run in parallel.

Module 1 provides you with a good grounding in the discipline you have not studied during your university careers to date. This module is composed of 39 ECTS credits for basic compulsory courses followed by all students, and specific compulsory courses according to your background.

Module 2 offers a wide range of optional courses in both disciplines. Of the 36 ECTS credits comprising this module, you are required to choose a minimum of 12 ECTS credits in courses linked by their content to the discipline you have not studied previously. In addition, you may choose 12 ECTS credits outside your study plan and can follow some courses at the Swiss Graduate School of Public Administration.

Students who pass the course and obtain a minimum of 21 ECTS credits in "tax law" and/or "financial law" may ask for a "tax law" and/or "financial law" subject area to be added to their diploma supplement.

The 15 ECTS credits of Module 3 may be acquired by completing a research or placement dissertation.

Examinations

Examinations, covering all subjects taught, take place at the end of each semester.

Mobility

You have the possibility of taking part in a one-semester mobility placement (30 ECTS credits) at a university in German-speaking Switzerland or abroad, with the prior permission of the competent authorities responsible for the Master's degree.
